ASU Prep Digital is a college prep option where online high school and university courses converge in a unique learning opportunity for all students. This rigorous digital high school program prepares students for university acceptance and encourages them to explore future college majors and careers.

ASU Prep Digital is part of ASU Preparatory Academy, an innovative and thriving PreK-12 school started by Arizona State University. We believe that every student can achieve a post-secondary education, and have designed our coursework and mentorship programs to make sure that belief becomes a reality.

What type of students attend ASU Prep Digital?

We have all types of students from all over the world, but they fall into two basic groups—part-time and full-time.

Part-time Students

Students that take courses as a supplement to their traditional school or homeschool studies are considered part-time. Many attend local high schools and use the ASU Prep Digital courses as a way to get ahead and begin their accelerated path to university majors.

Part-time students have the flexibility to work anywhere, on their own schedule and at their own pace. Some work in classrooms as part of their school's partnership with ASU Prep Digital. Others work on their own at home after school.

Full-time Students

Students taking four or more courses are considered full-time.

ASU Prep Digital is an accredited Arizona school and we award high school diplomas to qualifying seniors. Full-time students have the flexibility to work anywhere, on their own schedule and at their own pace. They also have the opportunity to accelerate their path to college and careers by taking concurrent university courses that earn them both high school and college credits.

Students work with a Learning Success Coach to plan their pathway to college majors and careers. Visit our website to see all the pathways.

In the 2019-2020 school year ASU Prep Digital served more than 22,000 enrollments.

This is not a credit recovery or GED program.

While ASU believes all students can be successful and is committed to surrounding them with the support needed to achieve their goals, this is a rigorous college-prep program. It is not designed for students who need to make up credits quickly or those seeking a GED.

Students are not eligible to enroll after their 21st birthday.

What are the teachers like?

Our highly qualified online teachers are the driving force behind the learning experience at ASU Prep Digital. Each student is assigned a teacher for each course to provide live instruction via video chat and one-on-one feedback via email, text, phone or video chat. Students enrolled in our university-level courses will also receive instruction from ASU professors.

In addition, all students are assigned a personal Learning Success Coach to help them stay on track and plan a path to college and careers.

What are the courses like?

The ASU Prep Digital high school courses are built on a college prep framework. This rigorous curriculum prepares students to become global thinkers and leaders, equipping them for success beyond university.

Teachers conduct live lessons via video chat several times each week. These are interactive sessions that engage small groups of students in discussion and shared learning.

Students will also work through online lessons at their own pace thanks to learning technologies that adapt to meet individual needs. Throughout the course, they will read materials, watch videos, play games, write papers, participate in discussions, create projects and apply knowledge in virtual reality environments.

All the course materials are online, but students are asked to apply lessons to real-world situations, participate in lab sessions, and collaborate with classmates and their community.

What is a typical day like for full-time students?

There is no such thing as a typical day for ASU Prep Digital students, because it all depends on their learning style, personal preferences, extracurricular activity schedule and mood. Some prefer to focus on one subject a day, while others mix it up and work on all their courses.

Some students build their day around the live lesson schedule for their classes, while others like to focus on projects first. That's the beauty of this flexible program. Sleep until noon, stay up late, practice your sport six hours a day, it's all up to you.

Become part of Arizona State University

The best part of being an ASU Prep Digital student is having access to the resources of the university ranked #1 in innovation (ahead of MIT and Stanford) by U.S. News and World Report for the last four years. Our high school students can take college courses, test drive college majors and potential careers, and even get a sense for ASU campus life through optional summer camps and internships.

High school students earn college credit when they complete one of our 200+ online college courses. Many of these university-level courses can also be taken as concurrent credit, earning you both high school and college credit at the same time. This saves you time and money when you get to college. And because ASU is a top-tier, Research 1 university, the college credit earned will transfer almost anywhere. This is not the case with all dual-enrollment programs.

Students can work with their Learning Success Coach to create a personalized college and career pathway. This aligns concurrent courses to university majors and gives students a head start. When they complete these courses in high school at much lower tuition rates, they arrive on campus with many credits already completed (and money in the bank). Two university courses are included each semester in our full-time tuition (which is $0 for Arizona residents).

When students successfully graduate from the ASU Prep Digital full-time program with at least a 3.0 GPA, they meet the requirements for admission to Arizona State University and the Arizona Board of Regents admissions requirements for the other state universities.

How much does it cost?

Arizona students can attend the ASU Prep Digital full-time program tuition-free. We also have tuition-based options for Arizona part-time students and students from across the U.S. and around the world.

Visit our Online Tuition Calculator for a quick estimate.

There are many factors that influence tuition rates, so please contact us for a personalized quote.
